Daystar Achieves ISO9001:2000 Certification

Daystar Products has successfully completed ISO 9001:2000 certification. As the only Polyurethane manufacturer in the automotive industry to have reached this level of manufacturing and quality control standards, the new certification ensures that Daystar provides unmatched quality with every product it releases on the market.

ISO 9001:2000 is a rigorous internationally-recognized set of standards that focus on key processes in all aspects of industry. From quality control to manufacturing to the sales of products to an extensive dealer network, ISO 9001:2000 certification encompasses all aspects of the way a company does business. ISO 9001 standards are almost always a requirement in order to do business with Original Equipment Manufacturers in the automotive industry.

Daystar achieved its three-year re-certification following an independent audit by BSI. Daystar has maintained ISO 9001 certification since 2003.

“ISO9001:2000 certification is extremely rare in the automotive aftermarket, and we’re proud to be leading the way in our industry,” said Doug Goodman, President of Daystar Products. “The standards may not be fully understood by many consumers, but this certification essentially means that we have all the procedures in place to build quality products today, tomorrow, and well into the future.”
